

FTSE Grayscale Smart Contract Platforms Crypto Sector Index

About the index

The FTSE Grayscale Smart Contract Platforms Crypto Sector Index was developed to measure the performance of crypto assets that serve as networks that provide the underlying infrastructure for decentralized applications in the form of smart contract. The Index is part of the FTSE Grayscale Crypto Sector Index Series, a comprehensive set of six distinct, rules-based indices capturing the investable crypto market of Grayscale Crypto Sectors.

The FTSE Grayscale Smart Contract Platforms Crypto Sector Index includes digital assets that are general purpose networks that provide programmable functionalities. These platforms primarily support the broad development and execution of selfexecuting contracts. Index eligibility starts with the assets included in the FTSE Digital Asset Universe that are also classified as Smart Contract Platforms as denoted in the DAR Digital Asset Industry Taxonomy. Crypto assets are further reviewed for inclusion or exclusion by Grayscale to best achieve the objective of the Index.

The Index is constructed to provide diverse and holistic coverage of the eligible crypto assets that have met minimum market capitalization and liquidity criteria. The eligible constituents are ranked by the square root of market capitalization (circulating supply and price) to achieve a more evenly distributed result across the Smart Contract Platforms Sector. Each Index in the Index Series is re-evaluated and rebalanced quarterly to best reflect the dynamic nature of the asset class.

The index reports price returns only and does not incorporate any network events such as forks. In association with Digital Asset Research, FTSE maintains the underlying Index data through a methodology designed to capture data from vetted exchanges to ensure the indices are suitable for passive products.
