<td>The benchmark statement shall clearly and unambiguously define the market or economic reality measured by the benchmark and the circumstances in which such measurement may become unreliable.</td>
<td>The FTSE Target Exposure Index Series Family is designed to deliver defined levels of active index exposure to risk factors, industries, countries and sustainability characteristics. The eligibility criteria for constituents are set out in the FTSE Target Exposure Index Series Ground Rules. The constituents of each index within the FTSE Target Exposure Index Series Family are drawn from the constituents of the corresponding underlying index as defined in the FTSE Target Exposure Index Series Ground Rules (‘the underlying indexes’). The base currency of the FTSE Target Exposure Index Series Family is US dollars. The indexes within the FTSE Target Exposure Index Series Family include benchmarks that measure the performance of various market segments. The benchmarks include (examples in brackets): • benchmarks for different regions (FTSE Developed Europe); Benchmarks may also be calculated using different calculation rules. Examples include: • benchmarks calculated on a price (capitalisation) only basis, excluding dividends; • benchmarks calculated on a total return basis (based on ex dividend adjustments). Details of the calculation methodologies employed are set out in the FTSE Target Exposure Index Series Ground Rules. The FTSE Target Exposure Index Series Family uses as input data official closing prices sourced via vendors from the eligible stock exchanges. The measurement of the underlying economic reality might become unreliable if one or more of the eligible stock exchanges ceased to operate but the constituent securities continued to trade elsewhere, either over-the-counter or on other venues.</td>

In circumstances where a known future event is not captured by the methodology documents, or where a decision to recalculate or correct an index calculation issue is not clear, the Exercise of Expert Judgement in FTSE Russell Indexes policy sets out the procedures that will be followed to determine the appropriate index treatment. 2.9 Determination of the benchmark in stress periods
BMR27(2)(e)

A benchmark statement shall contain at least the procedures which govern the determination of the benchmark in periods of stress or periods where transaction data sources may be insufficient, inaccurate or unreliable and the potential limitations of the benchmark in such periods.

External events can on occasion make it difficult for investors to trade securities on certain markets. Such events include: the temporary closure of a stock exchange; government, central bank or monetary authority imposed restrictions on the repatriation of foreign capital; and the imposition of sanctions preventing new investment in a country.

In such circumstances, FTSE International Limited will follow the index policies below:
Index Policy in the Event Clients are Unable to Trade a Market;
Index Policy for Trading Halts and Market Closures.

These policies set out the contingency prices that will be used for affected constituents in such circumstances; these are generally the official closing price published by the exchange as set out in the Closing Prices Used for Index Calculation guide. In certain circumstances, these will default to the last traded price. If those constituents continue to trade on venues that are not eligible for use by the FTSE Target Exposure Index Series Family, or if they trade over-the-counter, the benchmark may cease to provide an accurate representation of the underlying economic reality.

2.10 Errors in input data

2.11 Potential limitations
BMR(27)(2)(g)

A benchmark statement shall contain at least the identification of potential limitations of the benchmark, including its operation in illiquid or fragmented markets and the possible concentration of inputs.

The potential limitations of the FTSE Target Exposure Index Series Family include circumstances where a significant proportion of the closing prices of constituents of the benchmark are unavailable, for example because a contributing stock exchange experiences an unexpected outage or closure, or an eligible market imposes restrictions on the repatriation of capital, or an eligible market is subject to sanctions from the USA or the European Union.

In defining the potential limitations of the benchmark and the circumstances in which the measurement of the relevant market or economic reality may become unreliable, the benchmark statement shall include at least:

(a) a description of the circumstances in which the administrator would lack sufficient input data to determine the benchmark according to the methodology;

(b) where relevant, a description of instances when the accuracy and reliability of the methodology used for determining the benchmark can no longer be ensured, such as when the administrator deems the

(a) and (b) For the purposes of determining the benchmarks within the FTSE Target Exposure Index Series Family, the methodology specifies that the exchange official closing prices of the affected constituents will be used. In certain circumstances, these will default to the last traded price. This ensures that the benchmarks can continue to be determined and that the values and pay-offs of financial contracts and financial instruments that reference the benchmark can continue to be calculated. However, if the affected constituents continue to trade over-the-counter or on other venues, the benchmarks may cease to provide an accurate representation of the underlying economic reality.
