Recalculation Policy and Guidelines – Equity Indexes

FTSE Russell Recalculation Policy

This document sets out FTSE Russell's¹ Index Recalculation Policy. This policy and the FTSE Russell Index Recalculation Guidelines below apply only to those indices where the relevant Ground Rules (FTSE) or Construction and Methodology (Russell) indicate that this policy and the guidelines apply.

FTSE Russell makes every effort to maintain its indexes to high standards. Nevertheless, inaccuracies may arise in the index and constituent data from time to time and investors, index constituents, licensees or other market participants should be aware of this. Such inaccuracies may arise as a result of a range of events, including the complexity of certain corporate events, late announced or missed dividends, pricing errors, external disruptions or market distortions, incorrect, incomplete or late data input whether occurring internally or externally to FTSE Russell, and incorrect application of index criteria such as free floats, sectors or constituent make-up.

Where an inaccuracy is identified, FTSE Russell will follow the steps set out in the FTSE Russell Index Recalculation Guidelines below when determining whether an index or index series should be recalculated and/or associated data products reissued as a result of an inaccuracy. Because of the complexity of corporate events and the unpredictable nature of the issues that could arise, these guidelines should not be construed as definitive rules that determine the steps FTSE Russell will take whenever an inaccuracy is identified. In addressing inaccuracies, FTSE Russell reserves the right to consult market participants in complex cases as to the appropriate course of action, including the decisions on whether to recalculate indices and/or reissue its associated data products.

FTSE Russell does not accept any responsibility to investors, index constituents, licensees or other market participants for the accuracy of the index or its constituent data and accepts no liability for any losses, damages, claims or expenses suffered by any person as a result of any errors or inaccuracies in the compilation or calculation of the index or any constituent data, whether arising as result of negligence or otherwise.

¹ FTSE Russell is a trading name of Frank Russell Company (FRC), FTSE International Limited (FTSE) and FTSE TMX Global Debt Capital Markets, Inc. (FTSE TMX). FRC and FTSE are each benchmark administrators of indexes. References to FTSE Russell should be interpreted as a reference to the relevant benchmark administrator for the relevant index series.

FTSE Russell Recalculation Guidelines

The guidelines followed by FTSE Russell when determining whether an index or index series should be recalculated and/or associated data products reissued are set out below. The terms of the FTSE Russell Index Recalculation Policy apply to these guidelines.

If an error is discovered prior to client delivery, the index will be recalculated and clients will be notified of the delay in file deliverables, regardless of magnitude.

All changes regarding errors will be clearly communicated including the size of error and the products impacted.

(*) Errors occurring in the last two business days will be reviewed and recalculated if the impact is greater than the threshold. Errors dating prior to two business days will not be recalculated unless an error is material and impacts the replicability / tracking of the index. In these circumstances, FTSE Russell reserves the right to determine the best course of action.

() For headline indexes an index performance error greater than 0.01 bps will necessitate an index recalculation. Headline indexes include those listed in the table below. However, the list is not exhaustive and if extenuating circumstances exist for a particular custom index or a standard index other than those listed in the table, for example because the index is a basis for a passive ETF or because of the estimated size of assets under management tracking the index, a restatement may be made.
